

LHNet steps up fundraising efforts

Sponsoring LHNet benefits large herbivores and wilderness in Eurasia. In the long term, this will benefit future generations. For cooperating organizations it can enhance further realization of their corporate social responsibility. For us it means that we can do important work that has to be done now, in ... Read more >>

What's new on the website?

Over the past two years LHNet has been busy reactivating its activities, and has seen the number of visitors to the website increase tremendously: from just about 200 visitors in June 2009 up to more than 3500 in September 2011 (see Graph 1 below). It is interesting to see that the top ten countries in terms of visitors are the United States (with over 700 visits ... Read more >>

Student project on wisent

From July until December 2011 an internship project on the wisent is being carried out at LHNet by Yannick Exalto. Yannick is studying Wildlife Management (BSc) at the University of Applied Sciences Van Hall Larenstein, the Netherlands. The title of his project is: Current status of the European bison (Bison bonasus) and future prospects in pan-Europe ... Read more >>

Who is LHNet expert: Dr Magnus Sylvén?

1. Who are you? -- Dr Magnus Sylvén, Swedish by origin, now living in Switzerland. I studied Animal Ecology (specialized in large raptors). I worked for the Swedish government on several science projects, one studying grazing effects of livestock on flora and fauna. I joined WWF Sweden in the late '80s, and continued to work for WWF International in the ... Read more >>

LHNet likes Facebook

Join the discussions, obtain the latest news and get inside information on the large herbivores of Eurasia. Share your knowledge and experience with us on Facebook and tell us if you what you see!

Other announcements

- Coming soon: Antelope Conservation Symposium on 17 and 18 November 2011
- Bid for proposals Bezoar goat and Caucasian Red deer
- Stay updated with LHNet developments using RSS feeds

Please support us, with your donation

Photo credits

Daniel Klich, Taylor Lenz, Ruud Maaskant, Karol Zub